THE statement made by the Temps that the French Government are considering the propriety of extending their rule in Indo-China over the neighbouring countries of Tonquin, by M. Dupuis, a French merchant, and they are 'Annam, Laos, and the other provinces lying about to be summoned to do so; In the event of between Siam, British Burmah, and the their refusal a single battalion would easily effect Chinese frontier is important if true. The though deserted by France in 1874, would Annamite Government have not, it is stated, eagerly make common cause with it. carried out the stipulations of the Treaty of 1874 relative to the free navigation of the river Song-koi, and they have also shown themselves averse to improvement and reform of any kind. The action of the Annamite mandarins tends to thoke trade, and in Tonquin the obstructiveness of the officials has been especially marked. There is no chance of home dweet and in-the home dweet and inthe development of commerce while the pre- | ket .- Fined half-a-dollar. sent administration exists, and as there is undoubtedly room for a large extension of trade in Tonquin it is greatly to be desired | dollar, in default three days' imprisonment. that the French should take that productive province under their immediate rule. The anything but well affected towards Annam. and would no doubt gladly exchange their French government. With regard to the we always thought Annam was, in a sense, under the protection of France, though not a dependency. We presume, however, that the French Government are now think. ing of reducing it to that condition. As for , the Laos, a great portion of that country is tributary to Siam, while one or two Laotian chiefs acknowledge the supremacy half-a-dollar.

of Burmah. Of the Lactian nationality nothing remains but the name, and of its former capital some stupendous ruins in the midst of a forest alone testify to its bygone hard labour. barbaric aplendour and importance. Since the conquest of the Lace by the Siamese in 1827 the country has lapsed into a state of utter decay. The population has weefully decreased, and vast districts formerly cultivated are covered with almost impenetrable forests. The population of eighty or a hundred millions mentioned by the Temps could certainly not be found in Indo-China, nor could this number be nearly made up, even with the addition of Yunnan, Szechuen, and Kwei-chow. As a matter of fact, the population of the whole of Cochin-China cannot, we imagine, exceed tenor twelve millions. while that of Laos is probably not more than one million. Any attempt to interfere with Laos would be sure to excite the jealousy of Siam, to which kingdom most of the Lactian previnces are now subject. The possession of that country, moreover, would, not be worth the cost of acquiring it. The French Government have a good field for their energies in Cochin-China, however, where a good deal remains to be done, they desire to make their present possession really valuable. At present the French trade duced. Witness continued :- Before making as the apathetic policy hitherto pursued

The knowledge of Slevenian and Roumanian is proportionately less common in the staff than in the rest of the army.

THE MOUTH OF THE OBL. With respect to the mouth of the Obi, which Captain Nikitin has been commissioned by the Russian Minister of Finance to explore, the Yenesni Gazette publishes some particulars of interest from a report of the former. The approach from the sea was rendered difficult for steamers, as the shallowness of water prevented them going up stream as far as Nadim, the port where the river and ocean vessels should exchange cargoes. The steamer Neptune, with a cargo weighing 0,000 poods, could get no further than Cape Lidinait or the "Ice Cape," as it is called in the language of the natives. Even at that spot the vessel was unable to take on board the full cargo of 23,000 pounds, but stuck fast five times in the shallows, so that part of the cargo had to be removed again. It was only after she had been ightened so as only to draw 8ft, of water that she could get into the deeper water. Another difficulty was that the charts of the Gulf of Obiwere incorrect. Thus what is called the island of Mochtas is really a group of islands. This archipelago extends for 100 versts and greatly impedes the navigation both sea and river vessels. The Sibirgak requireditwo days to get through the shallows of the Mochtas Islands, and the Neptune, after spending ten hours in a vain attempt, at length got free of the sands only by help of the flood tide.

transferred to a Loudon firm his concession conditionally granted by the Turkish Government in 1871. It is true that at that time Turkey was in a very different financial position. Loans were being raised with an ease and rapidity that seems now inexplicable, and the British capitalist was ready to advance his money on the most shadowy of securities, varying from that of a railway which had not yet been planned to a sheep-tax of which the annual produce could only be conjectured in the most off-hand way. ment at Constantinople. The point at issue in this lengthy trial did not, of course, involve an actual inquiry into the feasibility of coarrying out the contract originally granted to Hanam. It was a question of bone files between him and the defendants, who were found on the evidence to have adopted improper means to deprive the plaintiff of his rights, and also to have neglected their duty, which was to make the best they could of the concession handed over to them. But the interesting fact, so far as the world in general in concerned, is this, that a line of railway, projected in 1871, and then supposed with good reason to be worth making, remains to this day unmade. It is probable that if reforms in Anatolia are really to be carried out, this scheme, or one very like it, will have to be revived, and it was to be accorded. DOUBLING THE CONTINENTAL POPULATION. - : The official Board of Statistics at St. Peterburg has published some population figures, from which it appears that in European Russia there are annually born 1,619,108 urales, and 1,544,297 females, or an average total of 3,163,405, children of both sexes On the other hand, the average annual deaths are 1,214,467 males, and 1,167,929 females, being wheeled about the Digue in a Bath- scaled b For a total of 2,382,396 persons of both sexes. The population, therefore, shows an average increase of 781,000 a year-a percentage which, supposing the inhabitants always to multiply at the same rate, would double the population in 58 years; whereas in Sweden, according to a similar method of calculation, this result would only be attained in 62 years, in German in 68, in Belgium in 79, in Austria in 95, in Switzerland in 99, and in France in 165 years. The high percentage of mortality in Russia in chiefly caused by they are a year old, whereas in Prussia, of 1,000 infants only 165, and in England still fewer, 140, die before that age.
